I've installed packages with: `$ sudo dpkg -i libwacom2_0 22-1_amd64 deb libwacom-common_0..` The LiveCD also doesn't install anything on your drive or affect your system in any way, so once you shut it down and restart, you can pop out the CD and go back to Vista normally.. But the pen isn't I've uninstalled, re-downloaded and re-installed the TB-6300 drivers several times without any results.. Boot up the system on the LiveCD and first see if the mouse works via the tablet, if it does, then the pen will work too.. Re: tablet pen iisn't working? You just download the ISO and burn the image to a CD.. Last but not least, you could also try installing it on another system that's not had any tablet on before, just to see if it's a more complex issue with the drivers.. • Be sure that your system is up to date (www.windowsupdate.com) • Unplug the tablet and restart your system.
